

Cormorants are dark brown birds with bright orange throats. Cormorants are social animals, preferring to nest together high in trees. The young are fed digested fish from their parents' hooked bills. Like anhingas, cormorants roost after fishing with wings spread to dry in the sun.